1. MOQ: MOQ (Minimum Order Quantity) - The minimum quantity of goods that a buyer must order from a supplier.
2. OEM: OEM (Original Equipment Manufacturer) - A company that manufactures products to the specifications of another company, which then sells the product under its own brand name.
3. FOB: FOB (Free on Board) - A shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are loaded onto the ship. The buyer is responsible for the shipping and insurance costs from that point onwards.
4. CIF: CIF (Cost, Insurance, and Freight) - A shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are loaded onto the ship, and also for the shipping and insurance costs to the destination port.
5. DDP: DDP (Delivered Duty Paid) - A shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are delivered to the buyer's door, including all shipping, insurance, and customs duties.

1. What is the difference between FOB and CIF? FOB (Free on Board) is a shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are loaded onto the ship. The buyer is responsible for the shipping and insurance costs from that point onwards. CIF (Cost, Insurance, and Freight) is a shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are loaded onto the ship, and also for the shipping and insurance costs to the destination port.
8. What is the difference between DDP and DAP? DDP (Delivered Duty Paid) is a shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are delivered to the buyer's door, including all shipping, insurance, and customs duties. DAP (Delivered at Place) is a shipping term where the seller is responsible for the goods up to the point they are delivered to the buyer's door, but the buyer is responsible for the customs duties.
