Polishing Process:

Polishing process involves the use of abrasive materials to smooth and shine a surface. The process starts with a coarse abrasive and gradually moves to finer ones. The final step is electroplating, which deposits a thin layer of metal onto the surface. This process is used for various materials, including metal, stone, and concrete. The lifespan of the polished surface depends on the quality of the materials and the skill of the operator. Adopting a polishing process can significantly extend the lifespan of a surface.

Polishing Process:

1. Prepare the surface to be polished.
2. Use a coarse abrasive to remove any surface imperfections.
3. Use a fine abrasive to smooth and shine the surface.
